Course Description and Objectives

The process of creative writing involves two overlapping parts: inspiration and execution. Most writing courses only address the latter part, focusing exclusively on technical questions of execution, such as how to construct plot, character and theme, or how to apply dialogue, exposition and metaphor. This course, in contrast, is concerned with inspiration. We examine and consider how source materials are used to create works of poetry, plays and fiction. It is equally analytical, critical and practical. We read and analyze great literature, but from the writer's perspective, allowing us to study how source materials have been used to inspire and execute their works. Students are encouraged to learn techniques of inspiration: how to read associatively and imaginatively; how to utilize the form and content of reading for your own ends; and how to target research to deepen and expand your ideas. The goal is to demystify inspiration, to strip it of divine or Romantic connotations, and to foster curiosity and creative ambition. Aspiring writers of every level will adopt expansive themes, subject matter and techniques in their own work, and gain comfort tackling projects that demand research.

Course Structure and Schedule

The course is divided into two complementary sections. Part one addresses how to research form and structure (weeks 1-4). Part two addresses how to research content (week 5-12). ## Assignments

Class Participation.....	5%
In Class Assignments.....	10%
Researching Form Assignment.....	20%
Researching Content Assignment.....	20%
Final Project.....	45%

- Class Participation includes attendance, completion of the reading, involvement in class discussion, and engagement in weekly group exercises.
- Each class features an in class assignment to practice the ideas and techniques discussed in that class. Each student is required to submit 3 of their in class assignments. These combined assignments will make up 10% percent of the final grade, and will be graded in a manner similar to participation.
- Researching Form Assignment is a work of poetry, drama or fiction 500-1000 words (for fiction and drama), 2-3 pages (for poetry), double spaced, with 12pt. font, either poetry, play or fiction, that utilizes the skills learned in the first part of the course, on how to research and/or use formal and structural elements. It is due on Monday, February 5, 2018 at 4PM (via Avenue to Learn).
- Researching Content Assignment is a work of poetry, play or fiction 500-1000 word (for fiction and drama), 2-3 pages (for poetry), double spaced, with 12pt. font, either poetry, play or fiction, that utilizes the skills learned in the second part of the course, on how to research content, and apply source material. It is due on Monday, March 12, 2018 at 4PM (via Avenue to Learn).
- The Final Project consists of two pieces: a) a longer creative work, 2500-3800 words (for fiction or drama) or a shorter 10-12 pages (for poetry), double spaced, with 12pt. font, that includes research and source materials in its creation, and b) a shorter explanatory essay, 200-800 words, double spaced, with 12pt. font, that describes precisely how you have used your research. The point of the final project, and other assignments, is not to write a masterpiece, but rather to show diligence, imagination and flexibility in your process – to practice using research for creative work. The Explanatory Essay is not anything like a formal bibliography. It is rather a document that explains your sources, your thought processes, and your creative leaps in the process of writing. It is due on Monday, April 9, 2018 at 4PM (via Avenue to Learn).
- Please submit all assignments in .doc or .docx format.

McMaster Policy on Academic Integrity:

You are expected to exhibit honesty and use ethical behaviour in all aspects of the learning process. Academic credentials you earn are rooted in principles of honesty and academic integrity. Academic dishonesty is to knowingly act or fail to act in a way that results or could result in unearned academic credit or advantage. This behaviour can result in serious consequences—e.g., the grade of zero on an assignment, loss of credit with a notation on the transcript (notation reads: “Grade of F assigned for academic dishonesty”), and/or suspension or expulsion from the university. It is your responsibility to understand what constitutes academic dishonesty. For information on the various types of academic dishonesty, please refer to the Academic Integrity Policy, located at:

<http://www.mcmaster.ca/academicintegrity>

The following illustrates only three forms of academic dishonesty: 1) Plagiarism—e.g., the submission of work that is not one’s own or for which other credit has been obtained. 2) Improper collaboration in group work. 3) Copying or using unauthorized aids in tests and examinations.

McMaster Student Absence Form (MSAF):

In the event of an absence, students should review and follow the Academic Regulations in the Undergraduate Calendar “Requests for Relief for Missed Academic Term Work.” Please consult the MSAF statement on our website (<https://artsci.mcmaster.ca/forms-requests/>) and direct any questions or concerns to Shelley Anderson or Rebecca Bishop in the Arts & Science Program Office as appropriate.

Please Note:

“The instructor and university reserve the right to modify elements of the course during the term. The university may change the dates and deadlines for any or all courses in extreme circumstances. If either type of modification becomes necessary, reasonable notice and communication with the students will be given with explanation and the opportunity to comment on changes. It is the responsibility of students to check their McMaster email and course websites weekly during the term and to note any changes.” I will make announcements in class and by using the course email distribution list <eg: d-as4CD3>.
