

Artsci Alumni | Issue 6

This edition of the McMaster University Arts & Science Alumni Newsletter features notable student and alumni achievements and also recaps recent Program highlights, including student involvement in a series of special projects ranging from research and video production to conference participation.

Many thanks to everyone who responded to recent calls from Artsci Director Jean Wilson for participation in ARTSSCI 3CU3 / Alumni Experience Inquiry next term; the 29 Feb. 2020 New World of Work Forum (volunteers still welcome); and the Artsci Alumni Corner webpage, which continues to grow. Please keep the Alumni Corner profiles coming, and make sure you visit the page regularly to see what your peers are doing today!

Notices, Reminders, and Events

• Since our last newsletter went out, a number of Arts & Science alumni have come to LRW-3038 to engage with current students: Samantha Nutt (1991) was here 23 Oct. for the 2019 Common Reading Program author visit; on 30 Oct.; Dr. Bob Henderson delivered a special guest lecture; David Campbell (2012) came on 5 Nov. to moderate a panel discussion on government employment; and on 14 Nov., Andrea Abeysekera (2019), Juliana Harris (2019), Matthew Jordan (2017), and Sarah Sandor (2018) chatted with current students about grad school over Milk & Cookies.

• Students, faculty, and staff gathered on two occasions last month for what are becoming favourite annual events: the Artsci Art Show and the End-of-Term Social. Coming early next term is another popular tradition, the Arts & Science Winter Lecture, to be delivered by Dr. P.K. Rangachari on 13 Jan. 2020. All are welcome!

• Remember that previous issues of the quarterly Arts & Science Alumni Newsletter can be found on the Newsletters page of the Artsci website.
